

The Regional Farm and Business Energy Savings Expo

The Ashford Clean Energy Task Force, in collaboration with the Ashford Business Association, the Ashford Agricultural Commission, and the Babcock Library, is offering an event where regional small businesses, farmers, and residents can learn how to incorporate clean and cost-efficient energy into their operations and homes for a minimum outlay of money. Grants, low-interest loans, and other options are available to help you minimize the carbon footprint of your business, farm, and residence and save on energy costs.

Amanda Fargo-Johnson, Connecticut Farm Energy Program Coordinator, will speak about farm energy audits and other programs available to farmers. Alison Jackman, Eversource, will speak about Small Business Energy Advantage audits. TechniArt will be on hand to sell discounted LED bulbs and there will be tables with information on residential energy audits and other programs, including generous weatherization programs available to those who are income eligible.
